Help from Ms. Florida

The reigning Ms. Florida U.S. Continental, Deborah Bernstein, a Boca Raton resident and the previous Mrs. Florida 2002, recently shared etiquette skills with women being treated for chemical dependency at the Gratitude House in West Palm Beach. Bernstein donated her time to provide etiquette instruction. Among topics she addressed were self-introduction, conversation etiquette, basic job interview skills and more. "I felt I had something to contribute to them," she said. "I made a commitment to Gratitude House because it is my passion to help others." She is shown with Gail Demsey, director of the Gratitude House.
